A+	Intelligence-Led Policing: Fusion Centers	111-0609	30 minute video plus course materials	Fusion centers have become a vital component of intelligence-led policing. The post-9/11 local law enforcement community is being asked to not only continue its role in combating traditional crime but also simultaneously act as a proactive force in combating international terrorism. In serving their purpose, fusion centers collect and analyze large amounts of personal information, which escalates privacy concerns. This course presents the mission, scope, and sensitive issues of fusion centers in police agencies.
A+	Pistolcraft: From Then to Now	057-0607	30 minute video plus course materials	In this course, we take a look backward in order to help us understand how police firearms training developed in the United States and why and how so many of the methods and techniques we have come to accept as dogma were adopted. An explanation of how the New Paradigm was developed will also be provided.
A+	Tactical Thinking: Secure and Transport	111-0006	30 minute video plus course materials	Tactical thinking provides officers a means to think through various tactical situations with a winning outcome prior to being involved in that situation. This can be done with regard to safely securing and transporting subjects in custody, both by patrol officers and correctional officers.
A+	Violent Offenders Analysis, Part 2: The Devil Is in the Details	179-0119	30 minute video plus course materials	SSA Alan Brantley continues his look at violent offenders, discussing the role depression sometimes plays in violent crimes, the organized versus the disorganized offender, and how the "devil is in the details."
A+	Bomb Search: Resources and Technique	888-0235	30 minute video plus course materials	Since the terrorist does not label the device with the word "bomb," what should you look for? What does a bomb look like? No one really knows because a bomb can be packaged in as many different ways as the maker's imagination will allow. Many factors regarding the search should be taken care of during the planning and preparation stage. This course considers the basics that are to be included.
A+	Digital Crime: Hackers, Part 2	152-0009	30 minute video plus course materials	This course builds on the history of hacking to help construct a profile of hackers that differentiates legal hacking, illegal hacking, and unembellished computer crime. These categories help investigators predict, investigate, and understand the criminal actions of suspects without wasting time and resources on the legal actions of hackers.
A+	Weapons of Mass Destruction: What Every Officer Should Know, Part 1	162-0010	30 minute video plus course materials	This course provides the officer with a context in which to understand weapons of mass destruction (WMDs). The majority of U.S. police officers work in suburban and rural settings and may be likely to view WMDs as a predominantly urban threat. This course helps these officers see how WMDs impact the safety of their communities. It introduces the series and provides a general overview of the types and effects of the five major categories of WMDs.
A+	Med Aid: Natural Disasters—Tornadoes	040-0014	30 minute video plus course materials	Originally intended for EMS personnel, PULSE training courses offer critical advice for any responder who arrives first to a medical scene. This installment examines one of Mother Nature's most powerful forces: tornadoes. Your role when a tornado hits will vary from helping with rescue efforts to maintaining order within the community. This course will help prepare you for tornadoes and the many challenges they present.
A+	Infrastructure Protection: Determining the Need for Protection	947-1012	30 minute video plus course materials	Each jurisdiction should determine its needs when it comes to infrastructure protection. This course aids viewers in methods of conducting a vulnerability analysis within their own jurisdictions and shows how our United Kingdom counterparts have implemented a successful assessment program.
A+	Roll Call: Bike Patrol	057-4009	30 minute video plus course materials	In the late 1980s, police departments became involved with community-oriented policing; this approach continues today, with some agencies refining the concept to problem-based policing. The success of this type of policing in combating crime has led law enforcement departments at all levels—municipal, county, university, and even the state level—to focus on closer relationships with the citizens that they serve. One way to develop and nurture such relationships is to deploy officers on bicycles. Join Roll Call host Dave Smith as we take a look at how bicycle patrol can benefit your community.
A+	Roll Call: Off-Duty Survival	057-4006	30 minute video plus course materials	This course looks at officers' responses to off-duty situations. Decision-making process and appropriate response choices are explained for use when the officer has time to determine a course of action. Prior planning, including the importance of an off-duty "family plan," is discussed. Safe responses to the arrival of uniformed officers following the intervention or presence of an off-duty officer are also presented.
A+	Responding to Snipers and Mass Shootings	163-0001	30 minute video plus course materials	This course gives first responders insight into what to expect when encountering a sniper attack and attacks where there are mass casualties. Tactical methods will be reviewed, comparing the first widely known mass casualty sniper attack at The University of Texas at Austin in 1966, to the other sniper attacks, including in Fort Worth, Texas, and Prince William County, Virginia.
